What is ASCD SmartBrief?

ASCD SmartBrief is a specialized digital newsletter service created to keep education professionals well-informed about current developments in education. It is a product of ASCD (Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development), a trusted organization in the education sector known for its commitment to advancing best practices in teaching and learning. The newsletter compiles relevant news articles, research findings, policy updates, and expert opinions from reputable sources, presenting them in succinct summaries. This format allows busy educators and administrators to quickly grasp key information without spending excessive time on extensive reading. ASCD SmartBrief covers a broad range of topics including curriculum design, instructional technology, leadership, equity, and student achievement.

Origins and Purpose

The inception of ASCD SmartBrief was driven by the need to provide educators with a reliable, timely, and accessible source of information amid the rapidly evolving educational landscape. Its purpose is to bridge the gap between complex educational research and practical application by delivering curated content that supports informed decision-making in schools and districts. The newsletter is widely recognized for its editorial rigor and focus on actionable insights.

Target Audience

The primary audience for ASCD SmartBrief includes teachers, school leaders, curriculum specialists, policymakers, and other education stakeholders. These professionals rely on the newsletter to stay abreast of emerging trends, legislative changes, and innovative practices that can influence classroom instruction and organizational strategies.
