Preparing Your Papa Murphy's Pizza

Proper preparation is the first step in the directions for cooking Papa Murphy's pizza. Since Papa Murphy's pizzas are sold uncooked, it is important to handle them carefully before baking. The pizzas come ready with fresh dough, sauce, cheese, and toppings, but require certain steps to ensure optimal cooking. Before placing the pizza in the oven, it is recommended to remove any plastic wrap or cardboard packaging that accompanies the pizza. The pizza should be placed directly on the oven rack or on a pizza stone or baking sheet, depending on the desired crust texture. Additionally, checking the pizza for any excess moisture or toppings out of place can help avoid sogginess and uneven cooking.

Removing Packaging and Preparing the Oven Tray

All packaging materials such as plastic wrap, cardboard trays, or paper liners must be removed before cooking. If using a baking sheet, lightly oiling or dusting it with cornmeal can prevent the dough from sticking. Alternatively, placing the pizza directly on the oven rack allows heat to circulate evenly, promoting a crispier crust. For those who own a pizza stone, preheating the stone alongside the oven will enhance the texture and flavor of the pizza crust.

Adjusting Toppings if Desired

While Papa Murphy's pizzas come pre-topped, customers may choose to add extra ingredients or rearrange toppings before baking. It is important to avoid overloading the pizza with additional toppings as this can affect cooking time and pizza quality. Even distribution of toppings ensures even cooking and prevents certain areas from becoming undercooked or overly soggy.

Oven Settings and Preheating

Setting the correct oven temperature and preheating properly are fundamental directions for cooking Papa Murphy's pizza. Most Papa Murphy's pizzas require a preheated conventional oven set between 375°F and 425°F depending on the pizza variety and size. Proper preheating ensures the oven reaches the desired temperature before the pizza is inserted, which helps achieve an evenly cooked pizza with a golden crust and fully melted cheese.

Recommended Oven Temperature

The standard recommended oven temperature for Papa Murphy's pizzas is 400°F. However, some specialty pizzas or thicker crust options may require adjustments to 375°F or as high as 425°F. It is essential to follow the temperature guidelines printed on the pizza box or provided by Papa Murphy's to ensure optimal results.

Preheating Time

Preheat the oven for at least 10 to 15 minutes before placing the pizza inside. This duration allows the oven to stabilize at the target temperature, which is critical for consistent cooking. Avoid placing the pizza in an oven that is still warming up, as this can lead to uneven baking and undercooked dough.

Baking Instructions by Pizza Type

Different types of Papa Murphy's pizzas may require varying baking times and techniques. Below are general baking instructions categorized by pizza size and crust type to guide consumers in following the directions for cooking Papa Murphy's pizza effectively.

Standard Thin Crust Pizzas

Thin crust pizzas usually bake faster due to their reduced dough thickness. The typical baking time for thin crust pizzas is between 12 to 15 minutes at 400°F. It is advisable to start checking the pizza around the 12-minute mark to prevent overcooking. The pizza is done when the crust is golden brown and the cheese is melted and bubbly.

Pan and Thick Crust Pizzas

Thicker crust pizzas, such as pan or deep dish styles, require a longer baking time to ensure the dough is fully cooked without burning the toppings. These pizzas generally take 18 to 22 minutes at 375°F. Monitoring the pizza toward the end of the baking time is important to avoid burning the crust while ensuring the center is cooked through.

Specialty and Veggie Pizzas

Specialty pizzas that include various meats, vegetables, or extra cheese may have specific instructions. Typically, these pizzas bake at 400°F for 15 to 20 minutes. Vegetables with high water content may release moisture during baking, so slightly extending the cooking time or using a pizza stone can help achieve a crispier crust.

1. Preheat oven to recommended temperature.
2. Remove pizza from packaging and place on oven rack, baking sheet, or pizza stone.
3. Bake for the specified time according to pizza type.
4. Check for doneness: golden crust and melted cheese.
5. Remove pizza carefully using oven mitts and let cool briefly before slicing.

Tips for Perfectly Cooked Pizza

Following specific tips can enhance the results when following directions for cooking Papa Murphy's pizza. These recommendations focus on achieving the best texture, flavor, and presentation.

Using a Pizza Stone or Steel

Preheating a pizza stone or steel in the oven provides a consistent and high heat source that helps bake the crust evenly and crisply. This method is particularly beneficial for thin crust pizzas and those who prefer a restaurant-quality texture.

Avoid Overcrowding the Oven

Cooking multiple pizzas simultaneously can lower the oven temperature and extend cooking times. It is best to bake one pizza at a time or ensure sufficient space between pizzas to allow proper heat circulation.

Checking for Doneness

Visual indicators such as a golden-brown crust and fully melted, bubbly cheese are reliable signs of a properly cooked pizza. Using a pizza cutter or spatula to gently lift the edge can also help verify that the bottom crust is cooked through.

Food Safety and Storage Guidelines

Proper food safety practices are important when handling and cooking Papa Murphy's pizza. Since these pizzas are fresh and uncooked, maintaining refrigeration and following storage directions helps prevent spoilage and contamination.

Refrigeration Before Cooking

Keep the pizza refrigerated at or below 40°F until ready to cook. Do not leave the pizza at room temperature for extended periods, as this can promote bacterial growth. If the pizza will not be cooked within two days, consider freezing it.

Freezing and Thawing

For longer storage, Papa Murphy's pizzas can be frozen in their original packaging or wrapped tightly with plastic wrap and aluminum foil. Thaw the pizza in the refrigerator before cooking to ensure even baking. Avoid cooking from a frozen state unless specified by the manufacturer.

Handling Leftovers

After baking, any leftover pizza should be refrigerated within two hours. Reheat leftovers thoroughly before consumption to maintain food safety and quality.
