Television Broadcast Options for KC Royals Games

Television remains a primary way to watch KC Royals games in 2023. The Royals' broadcasts are split between regional sports networks and national broadcasters depending on the game schedule. Understanding which channels carry the games is crucial for local and national viewers.

Local Regional Sports Networks

The majority of Kansas City Royals games are televised on Bally Sports Kansas City, the regional sports network dedicated to covering Royals baseball. Bally Sports Kansas City broadcasts most home and local away games, providing comprehensive pre-game and post-game coverage. Cable or satellite subscribers in the Royals' viewing area typically have access to this channel.

National Broadcast Partners

Some Royals games, particularly nationally significant matchups, playoff games, or

Sunday afternoon games, are broadcast on national networks such as ESPN, Fox, and MLB Network. These games are accessible to a wider audience across the United States and are often available on basic cable packages or through streaming counterparts of these networks.

Cable and Satellite Providers Carrying Royals Games

Popular television providers that carry Bally Sports Kansas City and national sports channels include:

- DirecTV
- Dish Network
- Xfinity
- Spectrum
- AT&T U-verse
- Cox Communications

Subscribers to these providers can access Royals games through their respective sports packages or digital apps linked to their subscriptions.

Streaming Services to Watch KC Royals in 2023

Streaming has become one of the most flexible ways to watch KC Royals games in 2023, especially for cord-cutters and fans on the go. Various platforms offer live sports streaming, including regional sports networks and national broadcasts.

Bally Sports App and Bally Sports+ Streaming

The Bally Sports app allows subscribers to stream Royals games live on their smartphones, tablets, and connected devices. Bally Sports+ is a standalone streaming service that offers access to Bally Sports regional channels without a traditional cable subscription. This service is beneficial for viewers who want Royals coverage but do not have cable or satellite TV.

Major Live TV Streaming Platforms

Several popular live TV streaming services carry channels that broadcast Royals games. These include:

- fuboTV: Known for comprehensive sports coverage, fuboTV offers Bally Sports Kansas City and national sports channels.
- Hulu + Live TV: Includes access to regional sports networks and national broadcasters.
- Sling TV: With the Sports Extra add-on, Sling TV provides access to Bally Sports channels in select markets.
- YouTube TV: Carries regional sports networks along with national sports channels.

Subscribers to these platforms can watch Royals games live via internet-connected devices such as smart TVs, streaming sticks, smartphones, and computers.

MLB.TV and Out-of-Market Viewing

MLB.TV is the official streaming service of Major League Baseball, offering live and on-demand access to out-of-market Royals games. However, local blackout restrictions apply, so viewers in the Kansas City area may be unable to watch games broadcast on Bally Sports Kansas City through MLB.TV. For fans outside the Royals' broadcast territory, MLB.TV is an excellent option to watch every game live.

Radio and Audio Broadcasts for Kansas City Royals

For fans who prefer audio broadcasts or want to follow games while away from a screen, radio remains a valuable medium. Kansas City Royals games are widely available on radio and online audio platforms in 2023.

Local Radio Stations

The Royals' flagship radio station is KCSP 610 AM, which carries live play-by-play coverage of every game. The station features expert commentary and pre- and post-game shows tailored to Royals fans. Listeners in the Kansas City metropolitan area can tune in on AM radio or via the station's official app.

Online Radio and Streaming Apps

National radio streaming platforms such as iHeartRadio and TuneIn provide access to KCSP 610 AM broadcasts. This enables fans outside the local broadcast area to listen to Royals games live on mobile devices or desktop computers. Additionally, the MLB app offers live audio streaming for all games, including Royals contests, often requiring a subscription or MLB.TV purchase.

Blackout Restrictions and How to Navigate Them

Blackout restrictions impact how fans can watch KC Royals in 2023, especially regarding streaming services like MLB.TV. These rules are designed to protect local broadcasters' rights but can cause confusion for viewers.

Understanding Local and National Blackouts

Games broadcast locally on Bally Sports Kansas City are typically blacked out on MLB.TV within the Royals' designated home market. This means fans in Kansas City cannot watch those games live on MLB.TV unless they use a TV provider that includes Bally Sports or a live TV streaming service carrying the channel. National broadcasts on ESPN, Fox, or TBS may also have blackout rules depending on your location and subscription.

Ways to Avoid Blackouts

To bypass blackout restrictions, consider the following options:

- Subscribe to a cable or satellite provider that offers Bally Sports Kansas City.
- Use a live TV streaming service that carries regional sports networks.
- Listen to the radio broadcast or live audio streams when video options are unavailable.
- Watch games broadcast nationally on ESPN, Fox, or MLB Network, which are not subject to local blackouts.

Being aware of blackout policies will ensure uninterrupted access to Royals games throughout the season.

Additional Tips for Watching KC Royals Live

Maximizing the viewing experience for Kansas City Royals games involves understanding device compatibility, subscription bundles, and alternative viewing options.

Compatible Devices and Platforms

Most streaming services and apps supporting Royals coverage work on a variety of devices, including:

- Smartphones and tablets (iOS and Android)
- Smart TVs (Samsung, LG, Vizio, etc.)

- Streaming devices (Roku, Amazon Fire TV, Apple TV, Chromecast)
- Desktop and laptop computers

Ensuring your device supports the necessary apps will help deliver a seamless Royals viewing experience.

Subscription Bundles and Cost-Effective Options

Some providers offer bundles that include regional sports networks, national sports channels, and other entertainment options. Bundling can be cost-effective for fans who want access to multiple sports and channels. Additionally, trial periods offered by services like Hulu + Live TV or fuboTV allow fans to test the platform before committing.

Following Game Schedules and Updates

Staying informed about the Kansas City Royals' game schedule is important. Official MLB sources, sports news websites, and broadcaster schedules provide up-to-date information on game times and broadcast details. This ensures fans can plan ahead and access their preferred viewing method without missing any action.
