Travelers should familiarize themselves with visa regulations, currency exchange, and health precautions before departure.

Visa and Entry Requirements

Most visitors to Mauritius do not require a visa for short stays, typically up to 60 days, depending on their nationality. It is essential to carry a valid passport with at least six months' validity beyond the date of entry. Travelers should also have proof of onward or return travel and sufficient funds for their stay. Prior to travel, checking the latest entry regulations from official sources is recommended.

Transportation and Getting Around
