Understanding the United Airlines Video Interview Format

United Airlines utilizes video interviews as a part of its candidate evaluation process to streamline hiring and assess applicants remotely. These interviews are often asynchronous, allowing candidates to record their answers to predetermined questions within a set timeframe. This format enables recruiters to review responses at their convenience while maintaining a consistent assessment approach for all applicants.

The video interview typically follows a structured format, including behavioral, situational, and competency-based questions. Candidates should expect a series of questions that assess their customer service skills, problem-solving abilities, teamwork, and alignment with United Airlines' core values such as safety, respect, and integrity.

Types of Video Interviews at United Airlines

United Airlines may employ both live and recorded video interviews depending on the position and recruitment stage. Live video interviews involve real-time interaction with a recruiter or hiring manager, allowing for follow-up questions and dynamic conversation. Recorded video interviews require applicants to respond to pre-set questions without immediate interaction, emphasizing concise and well-prepared answers.

Duration and Number of Questions

The typical video interview for United Airlines lasts between 15 to 30 minutes, featuring approximately 5 to 8 questions. Each question usually comes with a preparation time of 30 seconds to 1 minute, followed by a response time of 1 to 3 minutes. Understanding these time limits helps candidates manage their answers effectively.
